

...before I wake...
by Phillip H. Colglazier

...before I wake... is a spiritual and uplifting journey through the grieving process. A tragic accident tests Joe and Marty's marriage, their beliefs in God and their abilities to move on with life. Each struggles with the loss in a different way and at a different pace. Marty gradually learns important life lessons through the humorously touching friendship of two elderly ladies: Rose - a former neighbor, and Maggie - a feisty church volunteer. Their friendship, along with the healing power of time, brings laughter through tears.

Panel Discussion on Grief

A new educational event for nurses, physicians, social workers and other health care providers will be available in conjunction with ...before I wake .... The focus of the project is to help health care professionals better provide assistance to those that are grieving. Through a Panel Discussion providers can expect to gain greater knowledge of interventions, support agencies and services available to those in the grieving process. The Panel Discussion will follow the Sunday, February 6 and Saturday, February 19 matinee performances of ...before I wake.... The Panel Discussion will also be presented on Thursday, February 10 at 6:00pm (there is no play performance that evening). For more information call 260/373-7228. The Panel Discussion on Grief is a free program.
